

No pitch clock for World Baseball Classic

NEW YORK (AP) — Major League Baseball's new pitch clock, limits on shifts and larger bases will not be used during the World Baseball Classic.

The three innovations will be debuted during the spring training exhibition season that starts Feb. 24. The 20-team national team tournament runs from March 8-21, and players will return to their clubs for more exhibition games with the new rules ahead of opening day on March 30.

"There's going to be an adjustment and learning curve to those, so for the actual quality of baseball in the WBC, it's probably better that they didn't spring that on us in important games," St. Louis Cardinals first baseman Paul Goldschmidt said Tuesday during an online availability. "If something happened in an elimination game that we weren't prepared for, that could have a negative effect. We're going to need a learning curve with those and we won't get it for a few weeks, but we'll work on it in spring training and other times."

This will be the fifth edition of the WBC following victories by Japan in 2006 and '09, the Dominican Republic in 2013 and the U.S. in 2017. A scheduled 2021 tournament was called off because of the coronavirus pandemic.

Goldschmidt was 1 for 13 (.077) for the U.S. in 2017, and Arenado went 5 for 31 (.161) with a three-run homer against Canada's Andrew Albers in the first round.

"I feel like the hype is a little bit higher this time around than it was in 2017. There's more guys that want to do it," Arenado said. "I know it's not the World Cup, but just watching the World Cup and how awesome that was just to represent your country ... I don't know if it will get quite there, but get it close at least."

Arenado agreed with the decision to not have the new rules in this year's tournament.

"Maybe the next WBC, when everyone's kind of used to it already, you do it," he said.

Pitch limits again will be used.

A pitcher is limited to 65 pitches during a first-round game, 80 in a quarterfinal and 95 in the championship round, though a limit can be exceeded to finish a plate appearance. A pitcher may not pitch in games on three consecutive days. There must be one day off after throwing 30 or more pitches and two days off after throwing 50 or more pitches.

Designated hitters, the three-batter minimum and video review will be used, but the limit on mound visits will not.

Thirty-man rosters were due from teams on Tuesday and will be announced Thursday. Each team must include at least 14 pitchers and two catchers, including 10 pitchers eligible to pitch in consecutive rounds.

Titans

GAA's Kana Sgambelluri and Jack Keith — who coach Dwight McKeever said is a team of raw athleticism — have emerged as a league powerhouse. Sgambelluri has an intimidating block, and both he and Keith can put the ball down with authority.

The first set lived up to all the hype. Malana and Sgambelluri each put on a block party. The Titans pair as usual was the shortest team on the court but made up for it in speed and leap. They pulled away to win the first set.

In the second set, the game was even early on, but after a couple of service runs and aces, the Angels duo won in a runaway.

The Titan duo regrouped in the third set and kept it close, trading leads until the set's final tie at 10-10, but a kill by Keith and block by Sgambelluri was the surge the Angels needed to win.

"Though it was Gerald and Tyrone's first loss as a pair, they will use it as motivation to move forward," said Tiyan coach Rod Pama. "Tyrone and Gerald have great chemistry in beach. I am 100% sure they will regroup and remain contenders in the pairs. Titans 2 and 3 are really peaking now, so they will also factor in the pairs tournament."

Keith said he had gone from a rookie wanting to have fun to a competitor who only wants to win.

"We've come a long way for sure," he said.

The Pairs Championship begins Monday for both boys and girls.
